

The Word of God

... You, little children, live from the law written by Lord Jesus, through the prophets He had. Do not make laws the way you want, for your law breaks the godly law. Where it is written feast, it is written by Lord, Jesus Christ to be observed. Where is written Sunday, it is written by Lord, Jesus and it is put to be observed. Where it is written holy day, this is written by Lord, Jesus Christ and it is put to be observed. Do not break it, if your head were at your feet, for if you break it, you will be numbered among the defiled bones; if you break it, you will be numbered among the dead; if you break it, you will be numbered among the damned; if you break it, you will hear the words: “Go away from Me into the eternal fire!” That is why I called you to Me and I told you to keep the law of God.

I once sent My trumpet at the Viforâta monastery and was entered to the prioress, sons, and all the nuns were there, not when they ate but when they drank boiled brandy, after the holy service when they were getting out. And My trumpet, sent by Me, said: “It is not good what you are doing. You took the light and enter the dark and you got into the burrow.” And here the abbess said: “Who are you to talk to us like this? I have twenty years of monastery and I have never talked as you did. Get out, for I do not know who you are.” And the person who accompanied her said: “This being is the prophet from God!” but the abbess said: “God did not make me a prophet, the one who stay only in the service and made prophet a crippled and a lame man?” And My trumpet left and let them the same way as they were. Where is now the Viforâta monastery? For, it dies away continually until there is no spark of monk. You go to the monastery and give alms to pray for you and he has the belly full of drinking. We do not judge, but rather show the bad deed, for a blind man cannot lead another blind one, for they both fall into the pit.
